ABOUT ME:

Hi, I'm Jacob. I am currently a student enrolled at Bournemouth and Poole College. I have a huge passion for the technology sector, more specifically, the software behind the hardware. I have always been, for the lack of a better word, obsessed with apps, and more recently, web development, and HTML (Hypertext Markup Language). I have always felt, from a fairly young age, that we have a huge number of mobile devices and computers which are incredibly powerful, with unseen potential. One day, I would love to change that. While they are side projects at the moment, my mobile apps that I am developing or have developed can and do run on Apple devices. While they are admittedly simple projects, I am hugely proud of the fact that my name is out there. Out there on an app store that's on billions of iPhones.
